T1 Reminder Academic writing "constitutes a 'professional exchange' that requires argument-driven prose, historiographical engagement, and an assertion that what the scholar is writing about – the knowledge the scholar is creating – is new" per @kawulf @scholarlykitchn #MedEdChat

@GLBDallaghan Blogs may disappear as new forms of writing emerge as finding them and their veracity are key elements. Will we still we "peer review". Crowdsourced reviews by informed people are one thing... Interested in #facts not #perceptions to make #MedEd decisions. #MedEdChat

Lonika Sood, MD, MHPE @sood\_lonika8 hours ago

Almost missed in on the fun #MedEdChat Lonika Sood from @WSUMedicine in Spokane

Gregg Wells @Wells\_GB8 hours ago

@MedEdChat T1 Interactive multimedia is ever more impressive. Commentary by readers & replies by authors mean online pubs are actively growing documents with dialogs between readers & authors & among readers. Sharing raw data allows other researchers to confirm & extend findings. #mededchat
