@sood_lonika @MedEdChat T2 What about on psychiatry rotations? Do students get much exposure to mental health emergencies? @admsep #mededchat

Shaqil Peermohamed MD MPH @shaq_MD 9 hours ago
@MedEdChat Emergency Medicine, Critical Care, and Clinical Teaching Units (Internal Medicine) are high-yield for exposure to patients requiring immediate interventions. Video games are a powerful medical educational tool to practice different procedures. @LevelEx - great example! #MedEdChat

Sateesh Arja, M.B.B.S., MHPE, MSPH @ArjaSateesh 9 hours ago
@MedEdChat #mededchat T2 students get exposure to these patients in both inpatient settings and ambulatory but more commonly in inpatient settings. Clerkships like IM, FM, OBGYN, Surgery, ER and even in Pediatrics too #meded

T3 practice assessment and interventions. I really liked the option of debriefing, add that anywhere possible to preserve and keep the well-being of students and prepare for their future profession/experiences. #MedEdChat

Sateesh Arja, M.B.B.S., MHPE, MSPH @ArjaSateesh 9 hours ago

@MedEdChat #mededchat T3 Simulation plays a big role in this if appropriately structured in the curriculum and it ensures the patient safety at the same time. Should be combined with appropriate debriefing measures #meded

@MedEdChat T3: a big role for learner and patient safety... however important to recognize that transferability will not be #mededchat

Jasminka Criley MD, FACP, FHM @criley_md 8 hours ago

@MedEdChat T3: I have been involved in creating authentic learning experiences (in simulated environments) for over 20 years. It is a powerful tool from the perspective of simulated training to develop practical skills, patient safety & assuring availability of cases. #mededchat #MedEd

TOPIC 4: How does this translate through to GME? #MedEdChat #meded

Sateesh Arja, M.B.B.S., MHPE, MSPH @ArjaSateesh 8 hours ago

@sood_lonika @MedEdChat #mededchat T3 agree. Transferability of knowledge and skills is a question from a simulation to the real world in any case not just in case of patients required emergent care. Simulation is only one of the complementary method of instruction and training to real patients #meded

Shaqil Peermohamed MD MPH @shaq_MD 8 hours ago

@MedEdChat Many Canadian PGME IM programs offer bootcamps at the start of IM residency to help build skills and refresh skills for different procedures. #MedEdChat

Lonika abortion is health care @sood_lonika 8 hours ago

@ArjaSateesh @MedEdChat T3: challenge is often times absence of opportunities in the authentic environment until day 1 of residency... how do we move past this #mededchat

T4 Doctors Without Borders #MedEdChat

Lonika abortion is health care @sood_lonika 8 hours ago

@MedEdChat T4: i think the expectations for many is sudden immersion making it challenging... as an IMG likely there are varying experiences #mededchat

Sateesh Arja, M.B.B.S., MHPE, MSPH @ArjaSateesh 8 hours ago

@MedEdChat #mededchat T4 it should translate to GME such that medical graduates by the time entering into residency should meet EPA milestone; recognize a patient requiring urgent or emergent care and initiate evaluation and management #meded

Sateesh Arja, M.B.B.S., MHPE, MSPH @ArjaSateesh 8 hours ago

@sood_lonika @MedEdChat #mededchat T3 at many times there is scarcity of cases or absence of opportunities. When students missed experiences or lack of opportunities, simulation is always an option #meded
